Car Damaged In Highway Accident

Saturday night last around 11:30 p.m., Mr. and Mrs. R. Leggett and son Buddy while returning from Edmonton had the misfortune to run into a stray cow on the highway west of town.

The accident occurred in the hills just east of the Paylay river. Mr. Leggett was driving his 1938 Oldsmobile at the time, and had prior to the accident just passed a car which had caused considerable dust on the road. Mr. Leggett stated that the car that he had noticed on the road and had slowed down to pass them. Thinking that he had passed them all he was just beginning to pick up speed again and estimated that he was travelling approximately 35 miles an hour when all of a sudden a black cow turned up out of nowhere. By this time Mr. Leggett said that he had no alternative but to strike the animal, which turned the car completely around.

The occupants of the car are fortunate more damage had not been caused as the accident occurred near a high grade. If the car had turned right instead of turning to the left as it did, it would have struck a line of guard poles and might have carried down a steep embankment.

Damage consisted of a broken grille, radiator and headlight on the left side, in addition to both front and rear left fenders being badly smashed. An estimated cost of repairs is near the $150.00 figure.

A toast to the bride was proposed by Canon Willis and replied to by the groom.

After a wedding trip to Banff, Mr. and Mrs. Mann will reside in Wainwright. For travelling the bride was attended to by a large dress with white coat and brown accessories.

Out of town guests at the wedding included the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Shifflett and son Wesley of Cams, Alberta.

Wainwright O.O.R.P. Lodge Entertained Official Visitor

Wainwright Lodge No. 92 of the Order of the Royal Purple held a very interesting evening on Thursday, June 10th, when District Deputy Supreme Honored Royal Lady Lillian Whittaker of Edmonton was present for her annual official visit. Also present were ten visitors from Vermilion Order of the Royal Purple including H.E.L. Fay Park and Associate Royal Lady Logan.

The hall prettily decorated with lilacs and deep purple panicles, made an attractive setting for the ladies in white, who, capably assisted by Wainwright drill team, exemplified the different ceremonies of the ritual with competence and precision. Plans were made to entertain four delegates, H.E.L. MacGregor, Lady Dundas, Lady Q. Torgy and Lady V. Wilkins to attend Supreme Lodge Convention which is being held in Edmonton in July.

At the conclusion of the ceremony H.E.L. MacGregor presented Deputy Supreme Honored Royal Lady Whittaker with a small gift on behalf of the lodge, and a gift was also presented to Lady H. MacDonald as a small token of appreciation for her faithful services at the lodge.

A delectable and delicious lunch served at midnight by the hostesses, brought another successful "Royal Purple" evening to a close.

Tournament Sunday Opened New Tennis Court

To open the tennis season a tournament for mixed doubles was held on the new courts next to the Legion Hut on Sunday afternoon, June 13. Games were started at 1:30 and continued steadily until the finals in Primary and Consolation were played at 6:30.

There were sixteen couples entered. A large number of inexperienced players took part and the committee in charge matched the teams so an experienced player and a beginner played together. This arrangement was apparently very successful and some close enthusiastic sets were played.

The winners in the Primary were Marlene Koch and Russel Morris who won over Audrey Smith and Robert Leach. Mrs. Herbert Boyer and Cliff Gundry-White defeated

PALESTINE IS TEST FOR U.N.
The United Nations will learn this week from their on-the-spot military observers whether the truce in Palestine, negotiated by Count Folke Bernadotte, is being carried out.

If the truce is broken and open warfare breaks out again perhaps the suggestion by U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie that the U.N. cannot succeed without an international police force will gain backers.

Those who opposed using armed strength to back the decision of the U.N. will point out that the U.N. charter provides for the big powers to provide force to do just this.

But now after more than 7 1/2 years of disagreement and indecision, fears are rising that the U.N. will go the way of the League of Nations and become an ineffectual body.

An international army, of about 1,000 men and it has been suggested, would be a large boost to the prestige of the body and it would speak with authority with this force.

If each force as Lie suggests were used successfully in Palestine many more would be met with an all-too-often used weapon or threat to enforce U.N. decisions.

Undoubtedly, the effect of Lie's suggestion will be affected by events in Palestine.

If the truce commission is successful in the Middle East and there is the four-week calm in which a solution can be worked out, the question of the international army—which would raise one of the stormiest diplomatic debates in history—would be by-passed.

SHIP SINKING CAUSE HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE
Some 200 persons were believed to have been drowned in the sinking of the Danish passenger steamer Kjoebenhavn on Friday. A check was being made to find out the exact number.

Fire Damages Farm Home On Friday Last

Fire of undetermined origin caused about $700.00 damage to the farm home of Mr. Jack Murray, 3 miles east of Wainwright on Friday evening last, June 11th.

Mr. Murray and other company had lit a small fire for the purpose of cooking supper about 5:30 p.m., and before leaving for town at 7:30 p.m. made sure that the blaze in the kitchen stove was completely extinguished. At a little after 8:00 p.m. Thomas and John Erickson, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Erickson who live directly opposite Mr. Murray, noticed smoke pouring forth from the Murray house. Having no phone at the Erickson house the two boys rushed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Star, Cooper and gave the alarm. Mr. Cooper immediately put in a call to the Wainwright Fire Brigade, who rushed to the conflagration with the fire truck.

Waiting for the fire truck to arrive the Erickson boys tried to fight the blaze with hand extinguishers and managed to check the spread of flames, confining them to the kitchen ceiling and the upstairs wall. With the aid of the fire crew from Wainwright the fire was extinguished but not before it had burnt through the roof.

Much credit is due to John and Thomas Erickson for their prompt actions in fighting the blaze and turning in the alarm.

Mr. Murray did not learn of the fire until he had returned from a short visit to the Army Camp later in the evening and immediately went home to find the charred walls and roof. Luckily no extensive damage was done to any of the furniture. No insurance was carried on the building.

Mr. Murray expressed his gratification for the help that saved his home. He said, "If it hadn't been for the quick thinking of those boys, I would have lost everything."

A large crowd was in attendance and it is hoped that the enthusiasm shown will continue throughout the season, also membership will reach an all-time high. More tournaments are in the offing and we hope to see them as well attended.

A PRESS NOTICE FOR FATHER

Father has it tough. Nobody ever notices him much except to stop one of his favorite stories. The treasury branch of the family, custodian of the car keys and dispenser of even and sometimes heavy-handed justice, he is mostly an also-ran in the family press notices.

When he got married nobody reported what he wore or had showers for him. When Junior was born nobody sent him flowers; instead his friends assessed him heavily for cigars and firewater. When sister got married he paid the bills and in the report of the wedding all the notice he got was that the paper spelled his name incorrectly. When the first grandchild arrived people remarked that Father must be getting along in years but they said "My goodness, isn't mother young-looking to be a grandmother!"

Occasionally Father comes into his own but hardly anyone ever prints anything about it, yet reams of paper get covered with praise for Mother. Sometime when you are borrowing Pop's ties and shirts and getting an advance on the allowance recall this little story.

A local lad some ten years ago told us that his dad was an awful old gogey, way behind the times, all moss-grown. Well the years passed and the lad got older as people do. After considerable exertion he got out of high school, worked around a while, went into the service and then overseas. He returned in due course and found that his father had changed a lot. He was Conservative, yes, in his outlook but sharp and shrewd; his ideas dated from 1900, indeed from the beginning of time but those ideas were beginning to look like pretty sound sense; the moss he had grown was serving as a cushion against the buffets that life deals out. It was strange how different the old man was.

"You know, the old boy is amazing. He's forgotten more than I ever knew," our friend concluded thoughtfully one day. "Amazing," we murmured sympathetically and kindly did not point out that it wasn't Pop who had changed but his son.

It's surprising sometimes how much Father knows and can do. He is pretty good at homework sometimes and there is an unproven theory that he can lick any other kid's father. His ties are pretty fair and his Christmas presents occasionally make good trades; he has been known to side with his offspring against the cook when spinach made its appearance too often on the table; he even knows what all those spaces in income forms are for. Not a bad guy at all, Pop. —Nanton News.

THE CALF CLUB SHOW

Many people took the time and trouble on Thursday of last week to visit the Wainwright Calf Club Show and Achievement Day. In all probability if they attended last year's affair of the same organization they were somewhat amazed at the improvement shown. It is hard to believe that only the lapse of one year could make such a difference. This showed to be true in the prices that the cattle brought at the sale.

One feature that is not readily clear to the general public, other than those directly interested in the Calf Club, is the fact that this idea of Junior Calf Clubs, will go a long way to promoting interest in farming to the farm youths that live in the district.

With twelve additional members participating in this year's event, it would appear that wider interest is being shown as time goes on. Of course, some members are interested from a monetary standpoint only, but we believe that the general interest being shown is for a knowledge of cattle raising.

From a standpoint of monetary gain it must be admitted that some of the contestants profited by the sale of their calf. Some others will be fortunate if they strike anywhere close to balancing their budget.

In the terms of overall financing the figures represented by the proceeds of the calf sale were tremendous. When one stops to consider that on Thursday afternoon in the time limit of an hour or so more than $6700 was raised at the auction, it would appear that calf clubs are a benefit not only to the farming youths but to the town and district as a whole. The purpose of a calf club is primarily a course in citizenship. Training such as this is to be welcomed at every opportunity.

Much credit is due to the Senior members of the committee and to the members and their supervisor, the District Agriculturist. It must be well earned satisfaction they have after a day such as they experienced on Thursday last, June 10th.

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

The Commons has opened an intensive drive to clear up business with the object of a possible June 30 program.

Warned by Prime Minister Mackenzie King that another 20 measures still have to be acted upon, the members began swinging rapidly at government bills introduced. In one sitting last week they gave readings to at least six government acts.

However, one outstanding announcement made them pause and reflect awhile. It was that Rt. Hon. James Lortimer Esq., 64, will resign from the government this month and return to private practice.

When members recovered from their surprise, there was immediate praise for Canada's wartime finance minister from both sides of the House.

Mr. Esley's announcement was contained in a 176-word statement. He told his colleagues that he will seek admission to the Quebec bar and enter the Montreal law firm of Ralston, Kesney, Duquet and Mackay. This was the firm of which the late Col. J. L. Ralston, Mr. Esley's close friend and wartime cabinet colleague, was the senior partner.

Mr. Esley said the sole reason for his retirement to private life was the necessity after 22 years in public service to give attention to his personal affairs. His retirement is to take effect at the end of June.

A quiet, modest Nova Scotian, Mr. Esley had risen through parliamentary ranks to high cabinet honors. He was looked upon as a possible candidate for the Liberal leadership. Now holder of the justice portfolio, he played a major role in Canada's war effort as finance minister.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King later told The Canadian Press that Mr. Esley's intention to resign had been known to him for several months. "It will bring general regret throughout Canada," said Mr. King. "The severance of this connection with the government will be deeply felt by every member of the administration. It is a loss which, irrespective of their political sympathies, will be shared by all members of the parliament."

Help For Maritimes

Last week representatives of all parties supported a government measure to improve the lot of Maritimers. It was a bill to reclaim 80,000 acres of farmland inundated by flood waters from the Bay to Fundy.

The cost of rebuilding broken dikes and other repairs was estimated at $8,000,000. This was to be split three ways, between federal and provincial authorities and farm owners concerned.

It was understood the dikes had been in disrepair since the First World War. At one time the land had grown hay for the United States market, but with the demand dropping, farmers apparently had neglected repair work.

In 1911 the lands inundated were valued at $50 to $200 an acre. The value now is $50 to $80 an acre.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who introduced the measure, said expenditures in recovery of the 80,000 acres will run from $150 to $200 an acre.

There was a warm feeling in Ontario toward the extension of help to the Maritimes, Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel), acting leader of the Progressive Conservative party. He said the government should set its sights on making the Maritimes a strong and profitable section of Canada. He hoped reclamation of the marshlands was the first of a series of remedial moves.

The government this summer will launch a probe into the mineral resources of the Arctic in a unique fashion.

Stewart Bates, deputy minister of fisheries, announced last week the lease of fishing areas in Ungava Bay and Baffin Island in the north-east Arctic to the Shaw Steamship Company of Halifax.

While the company fishes for Arctic char and shrimp, low government prospecting parties on board the vessels will land to carry out government investigations.

He said that growing interest was being shown by Canadian business in resources of the untapped Arctic region. Private enterprise was keenly interested in commercial exploration of white whales, or belugas, as they are known in the Hudson Bay area.

The beluga is a sea mammal of the porpoise family, caught along the shores of Hudson Bay and the St. Lawrence estuary, weighing 10 to 11 feet in length, the beluga weighs from 3,000 to 4,000 pounds. Mr. Bates said his department was considering requests to kill the small whales in Hudson Bay on a commercial basis for oil and fat.

Steel and cast iron pipe are still in short supply in Canada owing to the shortage of cast iron and steel.

INDUSTRY GOES THE SECOND MILE

The general trend of all industry is toward a wider participation of the worker in the profits of the operation. That is as it should be. That is as industry, generally, has decided it shall be. But that is not always how it appears to the worker. The long belief that benefits are achieved only by coercion died hard. It died hard because there are more people with a definite interest in keeping it alive than there are people with a similar interest for discovering the facts. Coercion, though a dangerous and costly weapon, can, of course, do something about wages and working conditions, if this is necessary. But it cannot induce ownership to make the second-mile investment that assures continuity of operation and jobs, safe against almost any eventuality. When the owners, voluntarily, limit their own returns in order to safeguard the continuity of the investment, they are taking this broader look. Let us use General Motors to illustrate this point, because they are an exception to the general rule, but because their graphically presented annual report is just at hand.

The basis on which labor argues its case—the quiet sound and reasonable basis—is that work-effort rates with capital investment in entitling it to returns. That would be even more sound if all effort and all investment and all risks were equal. But that is not quite so. For instance, continuity of operation provides both the assured return on investment and continuing wages. That would seem to be a common interest for which both might provide some measure of insurance. Yet, as the figures show, only one party invested in this continuity in which both have an interest. Last year, ownership accepted as its return 3.8 cents for each dollar of receipts, while in 1941 it had taken 6.6 cents, or almost twice as much. The difference, which the owners voluntarily relinquished, they sowed back into the business; to protect their own investment, to be sure, but also to protect the interests of the worker to whom the job is as important as profits are to ownership.

While ownership was accepting half its accustomed return, a quarter more workers were earning almost twice as much in wages. They worked under better conditions. There were more safeguards. More training and new techniques made their jobs easier, safer and surer. Yet ownership was satisfied to pay 30 and 8/10 cents of every one of the total dollars received to its workers, that amount 3 and 7/10 cents for its own effort and thought and risk. The remainder, after 59 1/2 cents of every dollar had been absorbed by materials and taxes, went for worn-out plant and business expansion. On that record it seems that ownership that provides so much for protection that benefits all, is indeed sharing the profits of industry.

Twin Communities Near 10,000 Mark Stay Countryfied

Edmonton—Nearby Jasper Place and West Jasper Place form a twin sister which, together and incorporated could comprise Alberta's fifth largest city.

Edmonton doesn't want them, however; it would be uneconomic, Jasper residents say, to incorporate as a town, and then lead a "countryfied" life right next door to big-city advantages.

Edmonton's 149th street, terminus of the bus times, marks the city's limits and right alongside are the Jaspers, their nearly 10,000 citizens and their half-city, half-country life. Alberta cities smaller than the Jaspers would be Dr. Drumheller, Red Deer and Westlock, all under 5,000.

The Jaspers are administered by the Stony Plain Municipal District Council and have but one representative on it—Councilor J. M. Stone. Councilor Stone says the Jaspers' streets and avenues are surveyed and numbered; the community has a 30-shop business section, fine schools and churches and 2,000 children attending school.

But it has no fire protection, no water mains or sewage, no police department and no public works department. This means that it depends on the municipal district for road maintenance "and this is most unsatisfactory to us," the councillor says.

"Many residents would like to bring the community into the city but Edmonton doesn't want us," would lose Grant.

"We have thought of incorporating as a town but business sources of tax revenue would be few and we might lose much of our government grant," the councillor says biggest single problem is financing. Municipal district funds are limited. Government grants fall far below needs for a community where 2,000 children attend primary, intermediate and high schools.

School taxes alone amount to $75 a child annually. But the dread menace of fire hangs heaviest on Jasper citizens.

After two bad fires last winter the 300-strong ratepayers' association tried to make a deal with Edmonton. But without contract arrangements, the city's fire department cannot operate outside city limits.

The charge is $25 a call, and though some firms and residents have agreements for private service if needed, most feel they cannot afford it.

When the community tried to buy a former ROAF fire truck the municipality stepped in, said the mayor couldn't be diverted from local improvements, such as roads.

Poor drainage also means annual spring floods—canoes, and outboard motor transportation to the nearest bus stop. Tickets for the 10-minute ride to downtown Edmonton cost four for a quarter.

HORSE TO RENT—ONE CENT

Until electricity came along, nobody could use a horse for a full hour at a cost of only a cent or two—now everybody uses the equivalent of the power of a horse time and time again for this low cost. Aside from the cost—is the fact electric current can do so many things that a horse could never do.

A Tribute to Agriculture

In the last reckoning all things are bought with food. Our civilization is bought with food; our industrial achievements as a province and a nation; our cultural advantages, our recreation. Food, abundant and adequate, is necessary to support our civilization.

The food produced on Alberta farms is the main source of the annual wealth production of this province.

The total new wealth produced from Alberta's field crops in the past eight years was $1,736,000,000, an annual average of $217,000,000.

The gross Alberta farm cash income in the past eight years was over two billion dollars, an annual average of $252 millions.

The Alberta Wheat Pool publishes these statistics to show to Alberta people the value of the agricultural industry.

The Wheat Pool is a farmer-owned co-operative operating 476 country elevators and two terminals.

Pool Elevators have provided exceptional service to Alberta grain producers over the years.
